Silent effect
This series of images presents the effect of changes that happen in the city spaces and how those changes are reflected on the ground floor, on the facades and on the walls.

Silent effect
The series of images presents the effect of changes that happen in the city spaces and how those changes are reflected on the ground floor, on the facades and on the walls.

Haifa downtown moonlight
My impression of Haifa's being reflected through its buildings, places and the rhythms between people and city, white buildings reflect the time periods.

Haifa downtown moonlight
My impression of Haifa's being reflected through its buildings, places and the rhythms between people and city, white buildings reflect the time periods.

Outdoors Domestic Life
The common city of today is characterized by various different levels that create its urban fabric. Modern man is a part of the city. As a consequence, the tensions in the urban fabric create a new level of tension in the urban fabric. People are not only a part of the city, but they are also part of the city's lifestyle.

Architecture through the Wires
We usually define the city as a set of connections between buildings, people and streets. We attempt to define the relation between objects, spaces, squares... There are many things that we know, seen, heard, smelt, felt... Some of these things are interesting, others are not. We try to find the connections between these things, between these objects, between these spaces, between these squares, between these buildings... We try to find the connections between these things. We try to find the connections between these objects. We try to find the connections between these spaces. We try to find the connections between these squares. We try to find the connections between these buildings... We try to find the connections between these things in order to understand the city.